What does Child FIRST do?

Child FIRST is a state government initiative created to strengthen services to families, vulnerable children and young people by providing a coordinated intake service.

Child FIRST aims to provide:

- Information and advice to support children, young people and families
- A comprehensive assessment to ascertain best service to support families’ individual goals
- A service to ensure vulnerable children, young people and their families are linked with community supports and services
- A central intake service for Family Services Program
- Provide schools, service providers, community members and families with a service to contact for advice when concerned about a child/children’s welfare
- Onward referral to a range of community services to strengthen families

Child FIRST is a voluntary service and therefore families need to agree to participate. Child FIRST will seek to inform and engage families that may be unsure about becoming involved.

Who can access Child FIRST?

Child FIRST works with families who reside in the Local Government Areas of Wodonga, Indigo & Towong (Upper Hume), Wangaratta, Alpine, Benalla & Mansfield (Central Hume) which have children aged between 0-18 years, including pre-birth support.

Child FIRST works with families who require support with:

- Parenting concerns and managing children’s behaviours
- The impacts of family conflict or family violence
- Child or adult physical and mental health issues
- Physical and intellectual disabilities
- The impacts of substance abuse
- Connection with community organisations
- Personal support and engagement with support groups
- Building stronger parent-child relationships
- Accessing early childhood education and care

Who can refer to Child FIRST?

Child FIRST receives referrals from individuals, community members and professionals. As well as individuals who wish to access support for their family, any person who has a concern for the wellbeing of a child or young person may refer to Child FIRST.
